

1915 MARKS FIFTIETH YEAR FOR SCHOOL

Plans at G. W. U. Law Department Are Being Made for a Fitting Celebration.

The academic year of 1914-15 of George Washington University Law School, opening September 20, will be the law school's semi-centennial year. Plans are being considered for an adequate celebration by the faculty, the student body, and the Columbian-George Washington Law School Association.

Moreover, during the coming year the school will have a larger resident faculty, an improved and expanded curriculum, and a better physical equipment. Indications point to a record enrollment.

This law school occupies a noteworthy position among the law schools of the city because of its membership in the Association of American Law Schools, its policy of having the substantive law courses taught by professional law teachers devoting their entire time to the work of instruction, and the adjunctive or practice courses taught by lawyers engaged in the active practice of law.

Several Changes.
Since the last academic year there have been several changes in the faculty. Prof. Everett Fraser, for four years a member of the resident faculty, has been elected dean. Three new professors have been elected, Archibald King, J. Lewis Parks, Jr., and E. O. Schreider, Jr.

The faculty aims, as far as possible, to train the students of the law school for the active practice of law. The practice courses in pleading and ethics are taught by lawyers in actual practice. In the instruction the moot court is an important agency. In its three annual trials a student is required to try a number of cases, and as far as possible in an atmosphere approximating that of an actual courtroom. The Legal Aid Society, which furnishes legal assistance to needy persons is another means of giving students practical assistance.

Thorough Grasp.
The purpose of the instruction is intended to give students a thorough grasp of fundamental legal principles, the faculty explains, and likewise to train them in methods of legal research and legal reasoning, and to develop in them a "legal mind." This all-around training is designed to enable them to solve more easily the problems awaiting them as practicing lawyers. For this purpose the "case method" of instruction is admirably adapted.

Self-supporting students may complete their entire course for the degree by attending afternoon classes from 4:30 to 6:30. Certain optional courses are given from 7:30 to 8:40 in the morning. Students also may take the major part of their courses in the forenoon from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Mrs Emily F. Barnes to Reopen School Tuesday
Mrs. Emily French Barnes announces the reopening of her residence-studio upon her return from Eastman, Pa., September 8.

Mrs. Barnes has won prestige in Washington both as a teacher of singing and elocution. Her method of deep breathing, tone production, and voice placing have met with marked success. Her pupils in elocution gain a marked asset for business or social intercourse, or for public speaking. Through her instruction elocution pupils acquire ease and grace of bearing, capacity for deep breathing, and voices of flexibility and depth.

Special attention is paid to enunciation in both the courses in vocal music and in elocution. It is Mrs. Barnes' theory that mental clarity goes hand in hand with clear and distinct speaking.

Naon Now Ambassador.
Dr. Romulo S. Naon, now minister from the Argentine Republic, is to be the first ambassador from Argentina to the United States. The State in Buenos Aires yesterday approved his nomination.

EMERSON INSTITUTE HAS WON PRESTIGE

School's Courses, Efficient Faculty, and Care With Pupils Aid Reputation.

Emerson Institute has been turning out, year by year, graduates of such marked competence that the school has earned an enviable prestige. The school's thorough courses, its efficient faculty, and its care with individual pupils are factors contributing to this reputation.

The institute aims to furnish the groundwork of a thorough education, such as is needed today in every walk of life. It also prepares specifically in all studies required for admission to the leading colleges and universities, to West Point and to Annapolis, and to the Revenue Cutter Service. Young men also are prepared for direct commissions in the army, in the navy pay corps, and the Marine Corps, for the diplomatic and consular services, and for assistant examiners in the Patent Office.

Much of the success of these special courses, the faculty believes, lies in the fact that they are distinct, and each is adapted specifically to the end in view. This specific instruction in all studies is supplemented by those elements of a complete and well rounded education.

The institute is located in P street near Dupont circle. The quiet of a residence street adds to the facility for study. The quarters are well equipped and attractive.

Classes are conducted both day and evening. The evening classes afford excellent opportunities for young men who are self-supporting to broaden their education and increase their earning power. Many of the students last year were Government employees preparing for courses in the large colleges, or for examinations in the classified service as engineers, inspectors, etc.

GEORGETOWN LAW TO OPEN OCTOBER 7

J. Harry Covington Joins Faculty as Professor of Common Law Pleading.

The forty-fourth session of the law school, Georgetown University, will open on October 1, in the law school building, Sixth and E streets northwest. The faculty and students will assemble in the auditorium, where addresses will be delivered by the President of the university, the Rev. A. J. Donlon, S. J., and by the dean of the law school, George E. Hamilton, LL. D. The formal address will be delivered by the Solicitor General of the United States, John W. Davis, of West Virginia.

Indications point to a large enrollment of students for the coming year, and it is believed that the registration of the past two years, when the student body numbered over 1,000, will at least be equaled. The celebration last June of the 125th anniversary of the founding of Georgetown College, in 1789, stimulated renewed interest in university affairs among the alumni generally, the results of which are already apparent in the renewed interest in the development of all departments of the university.

George E. Hamilton, professor of legal ethics in the postgraduate department, has been elected dean, the position left vacant by the death of Harry M. Claiborne, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the District. Under his guidance the policy of advancement in legal education, which the law school has always adhered to, will be followed.

The faculty of the law school has been strengthened by the addition of J. Harry Covington, as professor of common law pleading. Mr. Covington was recently appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the District. Prof. Covington is a graduate of the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, and has practiced his profession in Maryland since 1894; he was elected to Congress in 1909, and was serving his second term at the time of his appointment.

Special lectures on legal topics will be delivered during the coming school year before the entire student body in the large auditorium of the law school building, from time to time, by men of national prominence in judicial and professional life.

During the past year large additions were made to the law library, and further additions are planned for the coming year. This is now one of the largest and best-equipped libraries of any of the law schools in the District.

The faculty has established a number of scholarships for the law school, one for each of the Georgetown alumni clubs throughout the United States, to be awarded, in each instance, upon the recommendation of the club.

Madison Hall School To Begin Ninth Year
The Madison Hall School for Young Ladies, 239 B street northwest, begins its ninth year under the management of Prof. and Mrs. George F. Winston, October 7.

This school, its faculty asserts, emphasizes thorough work under a faculty of specialists. It lays stress on its department of modern languages. French is spoken in the school almost as much as English.

The music department, under the direction of Felix Garza, prize pupil of the Paris Conservatory and concert pianist, offers exceptional advantages to students. The home life of Madison Hall is exceptionally happy, it is said, and in proof of this claim it is pointed out that pupils often remain for five or six years, taking special courses upon the completion of their regular courses.

Citizens to Voice Views On Street Improvements
The Columbia Heights Citizens' Association will meet Tuesday evening to act on a resolution disapproving street improvements in that section under the Board of Public Works. The resolution also will be introduced favoring the raising of a fund to relieve distressed districts from war-torn areas. The meeting will be held in St. Stephen's parish hall, Fourteenth street and Columbia road and Irving street northwest.

OTHER STATES HONOR GONZAGA DIPLOMAS

Courses at Institution Graded to Give Broad Training to Students.

Gonzaga College High School has for some years past enjoyed the distinction of being listed among the institutions recognized by the board of regents of the State of New York. This board is an officially appointed body of educational experts, who have made a life study of the best up-to-date systems of education. Not only is its authority over all educational institutions in New York State supreme, but its standards of study exercise widespread influence over the courses of studies in practically all the States of the Union.

This influence is due not only to the acknowledged merit of the conditions required by the board of regents, but also to the fact that no applicant can enter without examination any professional or technical school, or be admitted to the law or medicine in the State of New York unless he has graduated from a school recognized by the board.

A Gonzaga diploma, therefore, will enable the student who has satisfactorily completed his course of studies at Gonzaga to follow up professional or technical studies and work in the State of New York without an extra examination. Furthermore, as most of the States recognize the high standard of efficiency of the board of regents of New York, the diploma of Gonzaga will give the same exemption from troublesome examinations in practically any part of the country where he may wish to follow a profession or technical career.

The purpose of the mental training given is not proximately to fit the student for some special employment or profession, but to give him such a general, vigorous, and rounded development, while giving the mind stay, it tends to remove the instability of thought and want of mental elasticity.

The studies, therefore, are so graded and classified as to be adapted to the mental growth of the student and the scientific unfolding of knowledge; they are so chosen and communicated that the student will gradually and harmoniously reach, as nearly as may be, that measure of culture of which he is capable.

TEMPLE SCHOOL HAS HAD STEADY GROWTH
Organized in 1901, Now Has Fourteen Teachers for Students of Business Practice.

The Temple School was established in 1901 with a faculty of three teachers. The school now has a thoroughly organized faculty of fourteen teachers, with an average attendance during the winter months of from 300 to 400 pupils a month.

The Temple School realizes that there is little demand for unskilled labor in the business world today. The boy or girl must be trained to some particular line of work.

Therefore the school specializes in shorthand, typewriting, spelling, bookkeeping, and business office practice. The end-avoids to find out just what the boy or girl can do. Many come to it poorly prepared. It gives all students a month's trial. At the end of this time the parents are interviewed, and told frankly what the boy or girl is doing. In many instances a return to the grades or to high schools is advised.

"A pupil must have a foundation upon which to build a knowledge of history, geography, and grammar," asserted a member of the faculty. "The business school specializes. It must send its students to positions within a few months. They must know shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, spelling, grammar, reading, geography, and elementary history."

Business men of the city have gained confidence in this school from experience, and for that reason its graduates are in demand. An employment department is maintained by the school to look after its graduates.

Courses are arranged to prepare students for civil service examinations in stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping, departmental clerk, custom house clerk, internal revenue clerk, railway mail clerk, postal clerk, and other Government positions.

CIVIL SERVICE SCHOOL IS ALREADY OPEN

Provides Three Courses, Commercial, Shorthand, and English.

Sessions of the Washington Business and Civil Service School, 1317 New York avenue, have begun, although pupils may enter at any time.

This school provides three courses—commercial, shorthand, and English. The commercial course includes thorough training in double and single entry bookkeeping, accounting, banking correspondence, penmanship, rapid calculation, drills, business arithmetic, and spelling.

Students taught in the shorthand course comprise Pitman and Gregg shorthand, typewriting, spelling, letter writing, and office practice. In the English training course are arithmetic, spelling, grammar, reading, geography, and elementary history.

Business men of the city have gained confidence in this school from experience, and for that reason its graduates are in demand. An employment department is maintained by the school to look after its graduates.

Courses are arranged to prepare students for civil service examinations in stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping, departmental clerk, custom house clerk, internal revenue clerk, railway mail clerk, postal clerk, and other Government positions.

HOWARD U. TO HAVE NEW PHYSICAL WORK

Department Also Will Be Open to Professional School Students of City.

Howard University will open its fall term September 29, with a number of new features. One of these will be the new physical culture course to be required of all students in the academic departments.

This department also will be open to those in the professional schools. J. C. Logan, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has been attending a special Y. M. C. A. school at Williamstown, Mass., this summer and has returned with plans for enlarged religious culture and social service courses.

This summer there has been extensive filling and grading to improve the south side of the campus. Buildings have been repaired and many of them have been painted.

Several members of the faculty have been engaged in special study during the summer. Charles H. Wesley, of the teachers' college, and Roy W. Tibbs, of the conservatory of music, have been in Paris; Carl Murphy, of the arts and sciences, has been in Germany; Miss Elizabeth A. Cook in Spain, and Walter Tyson at the Commercial College in Columbia University.

NATIONAL PARK HAS WIDE REPUTATION

Pupils Have Advantages of Suburban Residence in Easy Access of Washington.

For its beautiful location, its homelike atmosphere, and for its wide range of courses, the National Park Seminary, at Forest Glen, Md., is widely known.

Pupils have the combined advantage of a suburban residence with easy access to Washington and its many points of educational interest. The seminary combines a preparatory department and two years of college work. Specialists are provided in music, art, elocution, domestic science, horticulture, arts and crafts, secretarial branches, library methods, and business law. The curriculum embraces every study needed toward the rounding out of useful and efficient womanhood.

Opportunity is offered for outdoor sports, and there is a well equipped gymnasium. Bowling, swimming and riding are indulged in by many of the students. Special attention is paid to the individual. It is asserted that this school combines the advantages of a large and a small school.

Lake School Trains Youth to "Make Good"
The Lake School bends its energies toward educating young men and women who can "make good" in the business world. To prove this assertion, it points to a large number of its graduates who are now occupying successful positions in this city, as well as elsewhere.

It is the claim of the faculty of the school that pupils are not only crammed with facts, but that the vital points of success in business life are laid before them.

The Lake School courses include shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, English grammar, penmanship, commercial arithmetic, and business methods.

ENROLLMENT HEAVY AT BONNE FEMME

Seminary at Twenty-second and O Streets Will Open for Season October 7.

Although the school will not open until October 7, a heavy enrollment already is reported for the Bonne Femme Seminary.

This seminary is a high class boarding and day school for young women. It is located at Twenty-second and O streets northwest, and occupies three attractive buildings of gray stone and buff brick. These buildings are equipped with every convenience of school work and comfort.

Class will be kept within the limit that permits individual attention to pupils. The school aims to give its pupils a well balanced, rounded education, which shall comprise mental, moral, and physical development.

Though the school is not sectarian, pupils will be under good home and religious influences. It lays emphasis on cultural and vocational subjects. Work corresponding to that of school grades is provided for younger girls, and the academic department provides training on a par with the best high schools and preparatory schools in the country.

There also are two years of properly selected college work with a post-graduate year.

Personal contact with the wide-awake and competent instructors will be a factor in the education of pupils. The faculty recognizes that much culture is not to be found in text books, but must be taught through the medium of inspiring personalities. Therefore lectures will be given by eminent specialists and musical programs by well known artists.

Receptions, inspections of public buildings of the city, and other opportunities will be grasped to contribute to this general education.

Each department of the school is under the supervision of a competent instructor. There are nineteen such instructors on the faculty. Among these are Samuel Monroe Fabian, director of piano; Robert Hickman, in charge of the department of expression and Mary Helen Howe at the head of the vocal department.
